

CIOKS new link range

After our very first product CIOKS Baby power supply was out in 1991, the Big John and Double Jack were launched in year 1995. Three more units were introduced in 2007 forming our Standard range of dedicated power supplies for effect pedals.

To follow our slogan "More power, more features, more design", we are now proud to reveal CIOKS link range. Three of the Standard range products have been dramatically upgraded and went through a spectacular face-lift, where the only thing left are their original names. CIOKS Schizophrenic link, Big John link and AC Rider link are our new babies in year 2013. Small in size, yet very powerful and each model with an individual character and force. The unique mains link feature allows you to merge two or more power supplies giving you the possibility to create a power supply bank matching your individual needs. Just one single mains power cord will power two or three power supplies, where you always have a courtesy AC mains outlet available on the last unit. You can of course also use them as standalone power supplies, getting just one to start with and extend with time. Have a look at the product pages for more detailed information and specifications on the new power supplies from CIOKS link range.
